Objective
In this cooperative game, everyone works in cahoots to complete a series of goal cards from the goal pile. The game starts with the player who last ate something orange and continues to end with the game that is won by the last player to place a card to complete a goal card. Each goal card states a specific requirement that your group must satisfy in order to be completed.

How to Play
The game starts with the players doing a starting layout and continues to the left. On your turn, play one card from your hand onto one of the number card piles. The goal card must be completed by the number cards on top of the pile. If the card you placed completes any of the visible goals, immediately collect them with new goals from the pile.

Notes
It’s possible that multiple goal cards will be completed on a turn or that a goal card is completed by the face up number cards as soon as it is revealed. In these cases, collect all completed goal cards and replace them with new goals from the pile.

Endgame
You complete all of the goal cards. Congratulations! You worked in cahoots and beat the game.

Examples of Things you can say:
"Don’t play on that pile." (It can also be both.) Then draw back up to four number cards, if there are still cards in the deck.
"I've got a good card for this pile." (It can also be both.) Then draw back up to four number cards, if there are still cards in the deck.
"I can help with this goal."